

Nanking

Author/Director: Michaël Prazan

Producer: Les Poissons volants

Country: France

Length: 52

In 1932, Japan invaded China. In 1936, China made an attempt to resist occupation. The Japanese armies retorted with a massive punitive campaign. But Nanking where the Chinese government had moved, put up a fierce fight. When the city finally fell, Prince Asaka decided to avenge the numerous Japanese deaths. 300.000 Chinese civilians were slaughtered one by one. Today, the 'Sack of Nanking' lies at the core of the battle of memory currently being waged by China and Japan.

This film is exemplary of an instrumentalisation of history for political ends that is highly topical today.

Coproduction: Rosem Films

TV participation: France 5, Planète

Original version: French

Versions available:

French version

English version

Credits:

Director : Michaël Prazan, photography : Liu Yong Hong, Michaël Prazan,

Sound : Soundg Yu Zhe

<https://www.andanafilms.com/catalogueFiche.php?idFiche=1016&lang=en>