

Someday my prince will come

Author/Director: Marc Isaacs

Producer: Marc Isaacs

Country: UK

Length: 50'

An exposed Cumbrian village by the sea surrounded by windmills, fields and factories provides a striking setting for this fairy tale of young love and the loss of childhood innocence. Over one year, the film follows the 9 year-old Laura Anne and her 11 year-old cousin, Steven as they move towards the end of their childhoods. The narrative is told in rhyme by the young female protagonist.

As time passes and the seasons change, feelings and memories from all our childhoods are evoked and we wonder what time will make of Laura Anne and Steven.

Festivals:

IDFA; Docs For sale; Docpoint- Helsinki Documentary Film Festival; Cinéma du Réel; Thessaloniki Documentary Festival- Images of the 21st Century; Pärnu Film Festival; Sheffield

Coproduction TV: Channel 4

Original version: English

Versions available:

French version
English version
German version

Credits:

Director, photography, Sound : Marc Isaacs, editing : David Charap, music : Michel Duvoisin

<http://www.adav-assoc.com/>

<https://www.andanafilms.com/catalogueFiche.php?idFiche=236&lang=en>